Primary Urban Bikeway Network

Colorado Springs is developing a robust network of urban trails and bike lanes which provides both residents and visitors bike-friendly access to places of interest. Recreational cyclists and bike commuters use the trails to access tourist attractions, local shops and restaurants as well as places of work and worship. Many trails are located along scenic corridors or historic rail lines. Since improving bike safety and access is a priority for Colorado Springs decision makers, new trails and bike lanes are being built constantly.
